Capitol Comments

By: Dan Daniel

Sometime before the end of the month; two measures of great importance to you will come before the House.

Notice I did not say "will have passed the House". For if the past can instruct us, in both cases the Congress will violate deadlines, but the republic will survive.

The first, which is scheduled to be debated this week, is the Second Concurrent Budget Resolution for Fiscal Year 1980. It will set binding ceilings on budget authority and outlays, and a revenue floor. It should have been dealt with by last Satudays, but once again we missed our own target date.

Under the Resolution as it emerged from the Committee, revenues (that's taxes, citizens) cannot fall below $519.5 billion, outlays cannot exceed $548.7 billion, and the deficit will amount to $29.2 billion. As we have pointed out earlier, that latter figure is a whopper, but nevertheless an improvement over prior years. And none of these figures is sacred. It is a further indication of Congress' high self-esteem that it should deem itself capable of ordering these numbers, when both spending and taxes are highly affected by economic events beyond the control of this body.

Be that as it may, the Resolution will be debated, and amended, and passed, and reconciled with the Senate version. Then we can get on to other things.

The next "other thing" which must be addressed is the increase in the temporary debt ceiling. This time, the Committee is recommending an increase of $99 billion and an expiration date of March, 1981. You will be forgiven your feeling of cynicism if you recognize that this gets us safely past November, 1980, when all the House and one-third of the Senate must stand for re-election. The pesent debt limit authority expires on October 1, and again if history repeats, we will miss this deadline, and go through another cliff-hanger over whether the government can pay its bills.

These things aside - and they are quite a burden to move aside - there are some bright spots in the picture of despair which Washington represents to most of the people of this country.

People complain, and in most cases rightly so, about the difficulty of changing direction, once a course is set by legislation. But in the past two weeks, three actions were taken by the Senate which, if they can withstand the assaults of the enemies of growth, will improve mightily the economic climate.

An amendment was added to legislation which will make it easier for courts to overturn federal regulatory decisions. Federal regulations have been primary stumbling-blocks in many areas of the economy, and once final regulations have been published, they acquire the full force of law. This should be helpful in virtually all areas of our lives.

Amendments were added to the strip-mining bill that will permit states to disregard Interior Department rules. These rules have been a significant cause of the delay in the full application of coal as a major solution to our energy problems, and many coal-producing states have argued that the Interior Department has been more zealous in its rule-making than the law required. A blow was struck for states' rights.

And finally, both Houses have approved completion of the Tellico Dam in Tennessee, which has been held up for years on account of the Snail Darter. A new home for the little fish has been found and the prospects for additional energy have improved.

* * *

In the past, we have commented on the importance of Congress actively pursuing its oversight function, in light of the enormous amount of your money which passes through Federal hands.

Recently I sent an investigator to Hawaii for an on-site inspection of a troubled Army-owned facility. The trip cost you $1,473 in tax funds. The saving in appropriated funds will total $3.7 million over the next three years. Should I have caved in to Washington press pressure on Congressional travel? You be the judge.

IRS PRP - "Try It, You'll Like It!"

"Write your Congressman!" is an all to familar expression these days for people who feel they are having trouble dealing with the seemingly impenetrable federal bureaucracy and its accompanying red tape.

But there is a better way, at least where the Internal Revenue Service is concerned. During the last two years nearly 5,000 Virginia taxpayers have been assisted through the IRS Problem Resolution Office, an ombudsman-like procedure implemented nationwide in 1977 to cut through the red tape often associated with repeated attempts to solve taxpayer problems.

The Problem Resolution Procedure--or PRP for short--is designed to handle the persistant difficulties that a taxpayer has not been able to get resolved through normal channels. These difficulties, says William J. Edwards, Problem Resolution Officer for IRS in Virginia, can run the gamut from problems with late or lost refunds, incorrect billings, to questions on the status of an audit or collection action.

Edward stresses that PRP should not be contacted unless normal channels for resolving problems have first proven futile. "A good rule of thumb to apply," he explained, is that a taxpayer who has contacted IRS more than twice about the same problem without receiving a proper response should contact PRP.

"PRP is not a substitute for the usual taxpayer assistance," Edwards cautions. "Nor will it handle such matters as decisions made during an audit, Freedom of Information requests, Privacy Act inquiries and complaints about hiring practices."

Edwards cited some examples of how PRP has been effective.

"A taxpayer expecting a $150 refund instead received a bill for $250 of additional taxes. After several fruitless contacts with the service center, the taxpayer phoned PRP and the problem--the service center failing to credit withheld taxes--was quickly corrected.

"An individual who owed back taxes had them collected through a levy on his paycheck. However, the fact that the delinquency was cleared up didn't get on the cumputer which stopped cold issuance of the taxpayer's refund. PRP put on the heat and the refund check was quikly taken out of the deep freeze.

"Until PRP bridged the communications gap between the two service centers, one of them claiming there was a matter of prior year taxes being owed, a frustrated taxpayer was unable to get his refund.

"Failure to attach a W-2 with an original return, then filing a duplicate return with the missing W-2, can tie the computer system in knots when a taxpayer is expecting a refund. PRP easily unraveled the situation and sent the refund check on its way.

"Even though IRS told the taxpayer to file a second return, the anticipated refund was not forthcoming. PRP got the "frozen" refund check to the taxpayer.

"These are typical examples of PRP work," said Edwards. "My files have many letters praising the work of our PRP personnel. .....a splendid job of unraveling the confusion.....unusual courtesy and expeditious handling.....efficient and understanding.....the promptness with which the problem was resolved.....' are some of the compliments PRP has received," Edwards stated.

To underscore the importance placed on PRP, IRS District Director for Virginia James P. Boyle said the Problem Resolution Officer has the authority to take the action necessary, including cutting across divisional lines, to expedite solutions to taxpayer problems. Mr. Boyle noted, "Too many times taxpayers feel they have no clearly defined person or activity to contact for resolution of their problems."

Another important aspect of the program, according to Mr. Boyle, is the personalized attention given to each taxpayer and their problem. "Through the entire process, the taxpayer usually deals with only one person and is kept informed of progress on the case."

Mr. Boyle said that an often overlooked benefit to IRS from PRP is the program's use as a method of detecting problems in the system. "By keeping track of recurring difficulties reaching the Problem Resolution Office, IRS management can identify potential problem areas and take steps to correct them," he added.

To reach the Problem Resolution Office is simple enough. Write: Problem Resolution Officer; Internal Revenue Service; P.O. Box 10113; Richmond, Virginia 23240. Or phone toll-free and ask for PRP (Richmond, 782-2843; Northern Virginia, 557-9230; Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, 461-2770; elsewhere in Virginia, 1-800-552-9500).

When contacting PRP, either by letter or phone, be prepared to describe the problem and provide details of previous IRS contacts, a social security or employer identification number and a current address and telephone number.

CRAIG SMITH, LEFT, AND SCOTT STEVENS led the Raider Cross Country team to its first victory in three years last week as Appomattox trounced Amherst 20-41 in Seminole District competition. The Raiders placed 8 of the top 10 runners with Smith coming in first (18:50) and Stevens second (19:10). They were followed by Ken Shorter (4th), Alonzo Dillard (6th), Pete Neally (7th), Richard Caldwell (8th), Richard Crews (9th) and Randy Richardson (10th). On Tuesday, Sept. 18, the team traveled to Lynchburg to run against E. C. Glass and V.E.S.

Raiderettes Fall To Defend Title

The Raiderette bid to repeat as winner of the Jefferson Forest Invitational Volleyball Tournament fell short when Holy Cross handed the A.C.H.S. team its second loss Saturday on scores of 8-15, 15-7, 15-10.

Earlier the Raiderettes had defeated Albemarle 15-6, 15-4 and Gretna 15-11, 15-12 after losing the opener 15-8, 15-8 to Rustburg.

In the Rustburg match Pam Guill served 5 points while Karen Johnson, Susan Handy, Annette Carter and Johnna Belter were credited with 3 points each.

Karen Johnson claimed 10 points as Appomattox easily defeated Albemarle. Annette Carter, Susan Handy and Karen Johnson each had several good spikes with Johnna Belter and Pam Guill setting the ball.

Of the four matches played in the tournament, team play was best in the Gretna contest. Annette Carter served 11 points in the game with Johnna Belter a close second with 8 points.

In a losing effort against Holy Cross, which saw the Raiderettes win the first game only to lose the next two, Susan Handy led the A.C.H.S. squad with 11 points and Kim Hipps contributed 9 points.

Liberty won the first place award followed by Jefferson Forest, Holy Cross and Appomattox.

Action this week finds the Raiderettes at Albemarle, Wednesday, Sept. 19 at 7:00 P.M. and Nelson County at Appomattox, Thursday, Sept. 20 at 4:30.

J.V. Team Still Undefeated

The J. V. football team remained unbeaten Monday night with a 30 - 0 victory over William Campbell. Alan Edmonds scored on a two yard run in the second quarter and Dennis Fleshman ran in the two point conversion to give the Raiders a 8 - 0 halftime lead.

In the third quarter Dennis Fleshman scored twice, once on a 45 yard run and another from 6 yards out. Alan Edmonds added the two point conversion to give the Raiders a 22 - 0 lead going into the 4th quarter. Early in the 4th quarter Petie McIvor returned a punt 40 yards for another score and Norman Turner powered over for the two point conversion to close out the scoring. Reserves took over for the remainder of the game.

The Raider offense picked up 19 first downs while the defense led by Rodney Bryant, Norman Turner, Robert Paulette and Kevin Mitchell only allowed William Campbell one first down for the game.

Dennis Fleshman led all rushes with 108 yards in 10 carries while Mike Williams averaged 43 yards punting.

In their two victories the J.V.'s have scored 68 points to their opponents 14. The next J.V. game is at home, Thursday, Sept. 20, 1979, at 6:00 against Rustburg.

Appomattox Midgets 26 Timberlake Lions 0

The Appomattox Midgets (10 and 11 year olds) opened their season last Saturday with a convincing 26-0 win over the Timberlake Lions at the Brookville High School field.

Wingback Ricky Dickerson opened the scoring in the first quarter with a 10 yard sweep around right end. Fullback Russell Walton added the extra points with a run around left end. The game was scoreless for the remainder of the first half with the Appomattox defense led by Tim Mullins, Russell Walton, Russell Hudson, John Humbles, Anthony Kelso, and Darrell Connor holding the Lions to very little yardage.

Appomattox opened the second half with a bang when halfback Andre McCoy took a flare pass from quarterback, Jeff Mottley and outran the defense for a 64 yard touchdown. On the next series of offensive plays, the second team offense took over and moved the ball very well until fullback, Barry Phelps took a pitchout from Marvin Hamlett and went 58 yards around left end for an Appomattox touchdown. The scoring was completed when linebacker Andre McCoy intercepted a Timberlake pass and returned it 35 yards for the final Appomattox score.

Outstanding offensive and defensive play was provided by Jeff Williams, David Jones, Darrell Conner, Troy Totty, Michael Martin, and Stan Slagle. All 36 players got a lot of playing time and turned in very good performances.

The Midgets next game will be this Saturday at home at Bragg Stadium against the Brookville Comets.

Local Student Playing Football at Ferrum College

Local Student Playing Football

William Marco Trent of Appomattox has been selected as a member of the 1979 Ferrum College football team, Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Hank Norton announced.

Trent is the son of Mrs. Margaret E. Trent of Appomattox.

Ferrum College has historically been a national junior college power, having captured the National Junior College Championship in 1965, 1968, 1974 and 1977. Coach Hank Norton, who has served as head coach at Ferrum for 20 years, has amassed a career coaching record at Ferrum of 172 wins, 50 losses and 11 ties.

Trent, 5'10", 190 lbs., sophmore at Ferrum College, will be counted on heavily this season as a fullback with the Panthers. As running back last season, he set a conference record with his 1^8 (yards per carry) rushing average. He also had the conference's longest touchdown run from scrimmage last season, 83 yards, and the top rushing game by a conference back, 190 yards, both against Westchester.

The Ferrum "Panthers" this year will play a ten-game schedule against some of the toughest junior college football teams in the country.

The season opened with a game against Newport News Apprentice on September 8, and will be followed by bouts with top-ranked Nassau College of NY, Wesley College of Dover, DE, and Liberty Baptist College of Lynburg, Va.

The schedule also includes battles against such Coastal Conference powerhouses as Potomac State College of Keyser, WV, Chowan College of Murfreesboro, N. C. and Lees-McRae College of Banner Elk, N. C.

Ferrum College is a coeducational United Methodist related institution. The college awards AA and AS degrees through the junior college and BA and BS degrees in eight human service fields through the college's senior division.

More than 1,500 students are enrolled in the coeducational college for the 1979-80 academic year. Ferrum's spacious 754 acre campus is located 35 miles southwest of Roanoke and 25 miles northwest of Martinsville, Va. in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Raiders Get Big Win, Defeat Generals 18-0

The Raider defense met the challenge of the William Campbell Generals Friday night, held them to just five first downs and 43 total yards as the Appomattox team got a bit 18 - 0 win in Seminole District play.

Probably the biggest surprise of the night was the way the offense came alive. After a struggle the week before; against the Gretna Hawks, when the offense failed to put together a drive of any kind, many fans were wondering about the remainder of the season, but with Terry Woods leading the way the Raiders showed some of the spark that we all expect.

Appomattox scored in the first period when Woods took a handoff from Roach and threaded his way through the General defense for 55 yards. Woods attempt to kick the PAT failed. In the second period Roach's flare pass to Woods again picked up 55 yards but this time Woods was stopped at the Generals 15. Moments later Roach carried the pigskin into the end zone from the 2 for the Raiders second touchdown. Woods kick was wide and the Raiders were ahead by 12 - 0 at the half.

With 9:04 left to play in the third quarter, Woods got his second touchdown of the night capping a 55 yard drive after the second half kick-off. Roach, attempting to pass for 2 point conversion, saw the ball dropped in the end zone, but the Raider offense had put 18 big points on the board for Coach Stuart Justus.

Woods carried 8 times for 78 yards, scored twice, and caught 7 passes from Roach for a total of 127 yards giving him 205 total yards.

The Generals Richard Barley brought the visitors to their feet midway in the first period when he broke through the Raider secondary and seemed headed for a sure touchdown, however speedy Robert Harding pulled him down on the Appomattox 11. The Generals failed to take advantage of the opportunity and gave the ball back to the Raiders after running four plays.
